We closed our campus last Friday and for good reason. Our wonderful facilities crew had to deal with 15 fallen and 5 leaning trees, all of which were removed for our safety. If you see any of our crew on campus during the next few weeks, please reach out and thank them. I apologize for any inconvenience our Friday closure caused, as well as the late notice, but we monitor the weather, electricity, and threats to safety, like falling trees, daily, and make the most prudent decision possible. While we had power on Friday (and even that was iffy as of 2 am Friday morning), we had fallen or falling trees and we did not want to have anyone in harm's way. However, we will be open with on campus services starting tomorrow, and will monitor the next storm which is due in the middle of the week, so please be sure to monitor your email or text messages for any last minute decisions about the state of the campus. Fortunately, all of this bad weather seems to have only impacted our main campus and the Sunnyvale Center has been relatively unaffected.

Stay warm, stay dry, stay safe, and look up!

Best regards,
Bernadine
